

Grandma & Grandpa News

Sunday December 28th

We left you at the water park after having a GREAT Christmas with you all. The roads were icy until we got to I-43. From there the roads were just wet until we got to southern Illinois. We spent the night in Pacific, Mo. We ate at a Mexican restaurant called "El Agave". It was very good.

Monday December 29th

We got up early and left for Tulsa, Ok. Gas was $1.35 a gallon in Missouri and Oklahoma. We got to Tulsa early and Grandma went on the treadmill in the workout room for 30 minutes. We ate at Ruby Tuesday's.

Tuesday December 30th

Tuesday was the longest day driving. We drove from Tulsa, Oklahoma to Albuquerque, New Mexico. We were pretty tired at the end of the day. Grandma went into the hotel pool.

Wednesday December 31st

We left Albuquerque early and stopped at Gallup, New Mexico for breakfast. From there we headed for Lake Havasu City. There was a lot of snow in the Flagstaff, Arizona area and also around the Grand Canyon. When we arrived in Lake Havasu it was 67 degrees and sunny. We unloaded the car, went to the store for food and made steaks for dinner, HAPPY NEW YEAR!!!

Thursday January 1st

We got unpacked and got everything put away. I got all of the Wisconsin salt washed off of the car. Grandma made spaghetti for supper.

This is looking southwest from the front of the house.

Friday January 2nd

Wow, what a exciting day! We went to Wal-Mart for groceries and other stuff. After we put the groceries away and ate some lunch we went down to London Bridge and walked around. It was a nice day, 67 but windy.

Saturday January 3rd

Another exciting day. Today we went to K-Mart and the library. In the afternoon I watched the play-off game between Arizona and Atlanta. Grandma played on the computer and read her book.

And now "Here's Grandma"

Hi everyone. Not so nice out today, very windy and only in the 40's. Washing clothes and had to go out and buy some water, their water tastes yucky. Hope you enjoyed your vacation. Just having a lazy day, not much happening. Love and miss you all. As always sending big Hugs and Kisses.
